Area health nurses locked out, communities now without services

The Board of Health of the Haliburton, Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit locked out its nurses on Monday, May 10, shutting off public services from the community, according to a release from Local 106 of the Ontario Nurses' Association received Friday. This action was also confirmed by Health Unit Board Chairman Mervyn Moore and by the Health Unit Administrator Hugh Good.

According to the release, the nurses represented by Local 106 of the Ontario Nurses' Association have been negotiating renewal of a collective agreement which expired December 31, 1975. They have been asking wage parity with local hospital registered nurses who, under a current agreement, have a salary range from $13,380 to a maximum of $15,780, after seven years. They say additional amounts have been requested for nurses with diplomas and degrees in public health nursing.

The release states the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit nurses, who have always depended on negotiation accordingly offered to submit the dispute to binding arbitration, and no threat to strike was made.

The nurses local 106 says the sudden recourse to force through lockout is incomprehensible. "He had already agreed to arbitration in future agreements, why not now?" they ask.

Continuing, Local 106, of the Ontario Nurses' Association claims the Board of Health of the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit is closing down a vital service without reason. They state the public health nurses have at all times been prepared to reach a new collective agreement reasonable and responsibly. "They will abide by the terms of arbitration. The employer should reconsider his threat to achieve settlement," they concluded.

Contacted by telephone at his Cobourg office, the public health unit administrator Hugh Good commented on the situation. He confirmed the nurses' claim that a Monday lockout had been decided upon.

Mr. Good said negotiations with the public health nurses had been carried out for some time and a subsequent conciliation report was submitted and was received a "no board" report.

He said the decision for a lockout resulted from the refusal by the nurses to accept the maximum offer allowable under the present provincial restraints. He said the province set an 8 per cent global increase limit.

He said as far as the employers are concerned, they are restricted in the amount of funds available.

Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit Board Chairman Mervyn Moore of Cameron, also confirmed the lockout decision. He said the negotiator for the nurses refused to take the Board's offer back to the nurses and the Board could not continue without a definite wage scale for the nurses.

$3000 target for Army blitz

The Salvation Army's annual Red Shield Appeal will be held during the month of May in the village/city of Haliburton. Commencing on Monday, May 3rd, there is every evidence of success again, according to the General Campaign Chairman, Mr. Roy Brohm.

The Objective of $3,000.00 will make possible the continuance of Salvation Army services in the community for the next year. It is absolutely essential that this amount be realized to meet operating deficit on the Army's social services caring for all kinds of human need.

The Campaign theme - "If you don't need our help, we need yours" - makes a direct appeal to every citizen for their support.

Captain Douglas Burry expressed confidence in the local citizens, feeling certain they will stand by The Salvation Army in a practical way again this year and help put the campaign over the top. A blitz will be held in Haliburton on Thursday night May 20th at 6:30 p.m.

Real estate board

Members of the Lindsay-Haliburton Real Estate Board gathered for the April dinner meeting at the Royal Canadian Legion in Bobcaygeon on April 27. President Ken Sangster welcomed everyone to the first meeting in Bobcaygeon during Centennial Year and noted that the Real Estate Board is considering the possibility of entering a float in the Centennial Parade.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Mr. Victor Hewson, Assessment Commissioner for the Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton Region, who gave a brief summary of proposed changes in assessment procedure as outlined in the 1976 Ontario Budget. Mr. Hewson spent considerable time answering all the questions about the effects of the new equalized assessment procedure slated for 1977. Mr. Hewson covered a considerable part of this complicated subject during the meeting and invited the members of the Real Estate Board to his office for detailed information.

The next speaker was John Eakins, M.P.P. who had driven up from Toronto for the occasion. He invited the boys to visit him at Queen's Park, preferably at lunch time. He said he was always happy to have school groups visit him at the Legislature and so far only one school group had done so, and that one was from Haliburton.

Damage high in area accidents

The Minden Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police report the following activity for the period of May

3 to 9, 1976: the staff investigated nine motor vehicle collisions and 61 general occurrences. During this period there were five persons charged with Liquor Licence Act violations, five persons charged with impaired driving, one compassionate message was delivered and five break-ins were investigated.

A vehicle driven by Curt J. Schnick, age 19, of 72 Ford Street in Toronto was travelling northbound in the southbound lane of the Kushog Lake Road while attempting to overtake another northbound vehicle when it collided with a car being driven by 20 year old John M. McNeil of Haliburton who was travelling southbound. Injured in the accident, which occurred at 3:40 p.m. on Sunday, May 3, were the drivers of both vehicles with cuts and bruises and two passengers in the McNeil car, one-year-old John T. McNeil and 21 year old Angel McNeil who complained of pain. Damage was estimated at $3,000 to the Schnick car and $1500 to the McNeil car as a result of the two automobiles side-swiping. The investigating officer was Ontario Provincial Police Constable Brian Ladurantaye of the Minden Detachment, who has laid a charge of impaired driving against Curt J. Schnick.

On Sunday, May 3, at 8:30 p.m., a car driven by Bruce Allen Green, age 21, of 90 Courcellette Road in Scarborough sustained an estimated $400 damage when it travelled off the Blairhampton Road, dropping down an embankment and striking some trees. Green was driving eastbound and going over a hill when the mishap occurred. A charge of failing to report a collision and a charge of failing to produce a driver's licence has been laid against Bruce Allen Green. Constable Gary Chapmen of the Minden Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police was the investigating officer.

Orman Rowbotham, age 47, of Haliburton has been charged with impaired driving after his northbound vehicle left the Harburn Road and entered the west ditch striking a culvert, causing an estimated $600 damage to his car and $50 damage to the culvert. The accident which occurred at 7:58 p.m. on Friday, May 7, was investigated by O.P.P. Constable Roy Telford of the Minden Detachment.

A charge of careless driving has been laid against Leonard Stuart Wyonch, age 37, of 27 Hewitt Avenue in Toronto by Constable Bob Rollins of the Minden Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police following an accident just north of Wren Lake on Highway 35. Wyonch was travelling northbound when he lost control of his vehicle and it entered the east ditch running over several boulders and coming to rest in Wren Lake. Damage was estimated at $4000 in the 9:15 a.m. mishap on Sunday, May 9th.

The Minden Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reported that one man was hospitalized and damage totalled $3000 in a single-car accident on Sunday May 9, about 3:55 p.m. on Highway 121 about six miles east of Minden (near the Ingoldsby turn). Police said Gary William McIntosh, age 22, of 3 Sancrest Drive in Scarborough was taken to the Red Cross Hospital in Minden for observation. They said the McIntosh car was travelling westbound on Highway 121 when it went onto the north shoulder twice, became airborne as it went over an embankment and landed on its roof. Charges are pending following final investigation by O.P.P. Constable Brian Ladurantaye of the Minden Detachment Office.

Stanhope notes

by

Alex Stevenson

Stanhope Township's appeal against the apportionment charged against this township for educational purposes appears to have been successful according to information just received from the Ontario Municipal Board, and which is now under study by township officials.

Without knowing the content of the finding, it can be said that the saving to this township will amount to several thousand dollars for the year in question as well as for the following years. Reeve S.G. Nesbitt, who has pressed this matter with considerable determination for some time has advised Council to continue with the appeal against this year's educational levy.

In view of the efforts by the Reeve on behalf of Stanhope Township, both before County Council and also before a board of arbitration, and being rejected on both occasions, and finally before the O.M.B. favorable decision must have made him rather happy.

Many highlights as Activity night held

Parents as well as the students received a great deal of enjoyment when Activity Night was held at the Haliburton Highlands Senior Elementary School last Wednesday evening. It was a pleasure to be on hand to see the smooth manner in which the principal Mr. Douglas Devolin and his staff ran off the many events which had been planned for the evening. What a night it was with special features to suit everyone's taste. There was music, gymnastics, floor hockey and band music. The evening opened when the 80 piece massed band from the school, playing before a capacity audience in the Gym offered several selections including some real rousing marches. The band under the direction of Mr. Don Wright are to be congratulated on their fine effort having been organized for only eight months.

Following the band music the parents were treated to forty-five minutes of a gymnastic display put on by the students from the school. This exciting display was under the direction of teachers Roy Hoare and Roy Scott. The parents were treated to an extra and for many it was their first opportunity to see floor hockey played live on the Gym floor. Two teams from the school under the direction of Dennis Baker played a period of this exciting sport.

The music lovers present were ably rewarded when the Grade Four choir under the direction of Ray Johnson and the grade six choir led by Nicholas Pawluch rendered several beautiful musical selections. The evening concluded with square dancing.

Guild of Fine Arts

sponsors art scholarship

Each year the Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts sponsors a Scholarship Program for students who show artistic capabilities. These scholarships provide those to whom they are awarded the opportunity to benefit from courses offered by the Haliburton School of Fine Arts. Every school in the county takes part in the search for these talented students. They come from schools in Dorset, Cardiff, Gooderham, Wilberforce, Minden and Haliburton. Last year twenty-six children were given scholarships.

The procedure for finding the talented students involves many people. All teachers in the county recommends that certain children in their classes be considered. These are chosen on the basis of ability and the desire to attend Summer School. A group of pictures from the chosen students are sent to a final selection committee.

In years past some students who have been chosen by their teachers as candidates have had to be eliminated because of lack of funds. The Guild hopes that this year enough donations will be given to allow more students to attend.

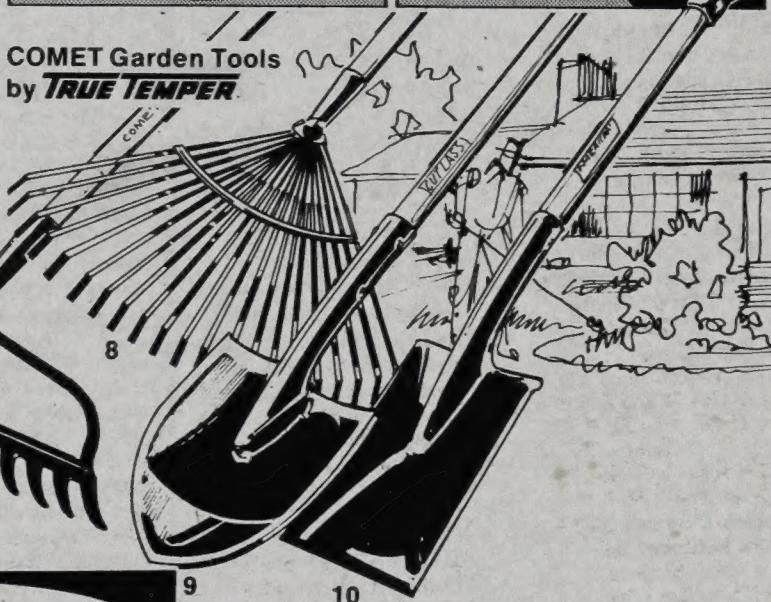

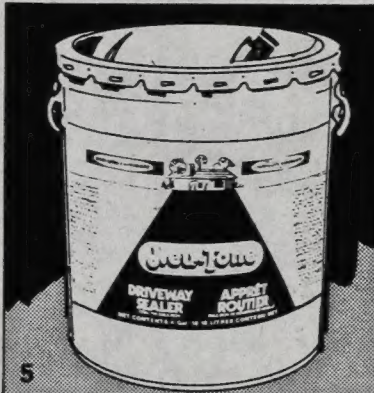

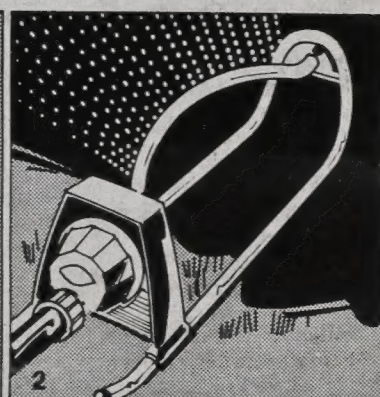

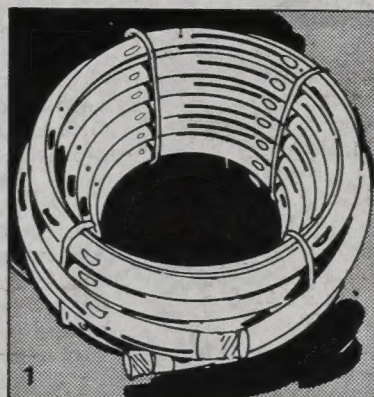

We hope those in the community who have contributed generously in the past will do so again this year. Anyone wishing to help in this project may donate.

(This year High School students will be able to apply for scholarships).

THE ENERGY WASTE WATCHER

This column will look at painless ways of cutting down your fuel and electricity bills at home. Have any suggestions? Send them along to the Energy Waste Watcher at Information EMR, 588 Booth Street, Ottawa K1A 0E4

Today more than half a million Canadian households boast an automatic dishwasher, and pay between $15 and $25 a year in electricity for the convenience. On a monthly basis, the average family uses about twice the amount of electricity to operate the dishwasher as it uses for washing clothes according to a provincial Hydro estimate.

Here are some simple ways to conserve kilowatts when using the dishwasher:

- Use the dishwasher detergent recommended by the manufacturer — he knows his product best.
- If your dishwasher has special cycles for partial load and short wash, use the shortest cycle that will suit your load.
- A dishwasher is used most economically at full capacity so try to accumulate the dishes and utensils from several meals for one load.

Let's all pull together

The Village of Haliburton now has three service clubs. The Rotary Club, Royal Canadian Legion and the newly formed Kinsman Club of Haliburton.

There is a lot of community service work to be done and it is to be hoped that with the addition of the Kinsman Club that the work load will be evenly divided.

Up to this time most of the local service work in the community has been on the shoulders of the Rotary Club with help from the Canadian Legion. We think that the Legion should be doing more service work in the community than they have in the past.

It is our hope that the three service clubs here now will pull together, share the work load and go out to work in the best interest of the community.

Reduce Snowmobile accidents

TORONTO - Between November 19, 1975 and March 23, 1976 there were 22 fatalities, 537 personal injuries and 267 property damage collisions involving snowmobiles on and off Ontario highways, reported Transportation and Communications Minister James Snow.

"This situation underscores the potential hazards of snowmobiling and the need to train operators" said Mr. Snow, "and our proposed instruction program is a logical next step to meet this need."

Mr. Snow was referring to his Ministry's program with the Ontario Safety League and the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs to develop and deliver a program of courses on snowmobiling and snowmobile driver training. MTC will provide the Ontario Safety League with a grant of $20,000 to develop the course. From the course will come Ontario's first certified snowmobile instructors.

The OSL will carry out a two-day course with no less than 18 people who will qualify as "area instructors". They in turn will train approximately 1,200 snowmobile instructors from across the province who will train locally those who want to apply for a motorized snow vehicle operator's licence.

At the moment, the manual for instructors and the instruction course is being written.

"I know the snowmobile clubs are anxious to get this program under way," said Mr. Snow. "And just as soon as it's possible we will finalize the course content, regulations and method of issuing the licenses."

"We will do our part to get the courses off the ground later this Spring or in early Summer, so that a start can be made on training young snowmobilers before the next snowmobiling season."

Report from Parliament

by

William C. Scott

The failure of the federal/provincial conference on energy, held in Ottawa last Thursday to establish pricing levels for oil and gas in Canada, points up once again the vital need for a national energy policy.

We have been calling for such a policy for a number of years, and I am convinced that this is the only way that we can avoid plunging the country into an energy crisis every Winter, as the demand for oil and gas escalates.

A national energy policy would have two important effects. It would allow us to plan ahead to peak demands for energy, and to ensure that an adequate supply would be available to all parts of the country. It would also allow us to establish a stable pricing policy for all types of energy, and prevent sudden price spirals. Price increases are usually associated with real or apprehended shortages of oil and gas.

This would be important to industries, and as Ontario is the most industrialized province in the country, stable and reasonable fuel prices are important to our economic security. Most electricity is produced with oil or coal, and hydro prices are tied directly to fuel costs.

Three years ago we were assured by the government that we had enough known reserves of oil and gas to provide for our needs over the next twenty to fifty years. A short time later we were faced with a fuel shortage that caused near panic throughout the country.

A national energy policy would have prevented such a shortage, as we would have had machinery in place to ensure distribution of fuel to areas where it was in short supply, such as the Maritimes. In addition to using oil and gas for heating, cooking and other domestic uses, the Maritimes produce all of their electricity with oil and gas. Even in the best of times, oil and gas, and hydro, cost Maritimers as much as twice the cost of these fuels in Ontario and other provinces.

All of the fuel and gas consumed in Ontario comes from the Western provinces, or from foreign sources. This makes us susceptible to pricing policies set by people from outside the province, people who do not have our best interests uppermost in their minds. It is important then, for us to be hard-nosed in our dealings with the federal government in the setting of energy prices.

Being the most populous province, Ontario is also the largest domestic consumer of fossil fuels and hydro. It is therefore doubly important to us to have a national policy on distribution and pricing.

One of the consequences of not having a national energy policy is the situation in Quebec. That province gets all of the power generated in the hydro-electric complex in Churchill Falls, Labrador. Part of that power should rightfully go to the Maritime Provinces, such as Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

When the James Bay hydro-electric complex goes into operation, Quebec will have a surplus of power, and this surplus has already been contracted for by U.S. users. Power should not be exported unless it is surplus to Canadian needs, not just the needs of a single province.

A few weeks ago the government published what it called "An Energy Strategy for Canada", and this is supposed to be a national energy policy. It might someday develop into a set of firm policies, but it should be labelled as simply a study paper. A national energy policy would have to be drafted by the federal government, after consultations with the provinces, and then debated in the House of Commons. It should be obvious, then, that the pamphlet that I just mentioned could not constitute a national energy policy.

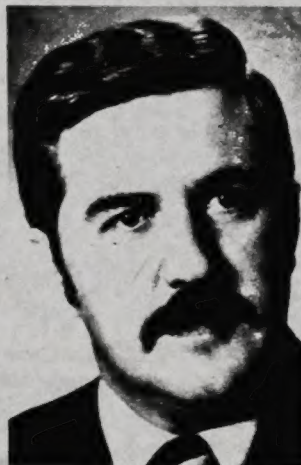

Premier Davis has been urging the federal government to establish a blended price for gas and oil within Canada, a policy that would protect Canadian Consumers of these fuels from sudden and dramatic increases in prices. Davis suggests that oil be imported and foreign sources at the world price, which is set by the major oil-producing nations and cannot be influenced by Canada.

He then suggests that the price of oil and gas from existing wells be held to the present levels. And finally, the premier says that oil and gas from new sources should be priced about half-way between existing domestic prices and the world price, allowing producers to recover the cost of discovery.

This formula would protect Canadian consumers from the fluctuations in supplies and pricing throughout the world, and would also enable us to exercise more control over domestic pricing. Premier Davis feels so strongly about this approach to the oil and gas question that he says that the future of confederation itself is at stake.

Increasing crime rate concerns banks

Ontario's bank crime rate increased last year, but not as much as the national figure, according to a banking industry security officer.

Michael Ballard

Michael Ballard, director of security for the Canadian Bankers' Association (CBA), said there were 144 robberies and related offences against banks in Ontario last year compared with 129 in 1974.

Nationally, there were 1,057 such offences in 1975, compared to 545 a year earlier, and 379 in 1971. Net loss to the banks — money stolen and not recovered — was more than $5.17 million.

Mr. Ballard said the rising number of robberies and related offences against the banks has been a matter of paramount concern to the industry for some years. Much of the increase in the money loss was the result of extortions and kidnappings involving large amounts.

There are just over 7,000 bank offices in Canada, so on average one branch in seven was the victim of an offence last year.

Statistics compiled by the CBA, the industry association of the chartered banks, show an especially sharp increase in Quebec and British Columbia.

Mr. Ballard said that while the continuing escalation in bank offences disturbs all bankers and law enforcement agencies, there are some encouraging signs. The organized gangs responsible for most bank offences a few years ago have virtually disappeared and now well over half of all incidents involve only one person. And about 18 per cent of all attempts are thwarted without loss of money and half of all robberies net less than $2,000.

But Mr. Ballard said that bank-related crimes have taken an even more dangerous turn in recent years, with kidnappings and extortions involving bank employees and their families.

"Our main and over-riding concern always is the safety of our personnel and customers," Mr. Ballard said. "This concern has always guided the elaborate and sophisticated contingency plans and procedures we have developed in the industry to combat this form of criminal activity."

Insofar as the association is concerned, Mr. Ballard said close liaison is being maintained with law enforcement agencies at all levels in a continuing effort to upgrade protective and apprehension procedures.

In addition, the association's reward program, to recognize the assistance of individuals, "has never been more active, which indicates the willingness of citizens to assist in bringing these bank criminals to justice," Mr. Ballard said.

"More than $1.25 million has been paid out to individuals, ranging from a low of $100 to a high of several thousand dollars, depending on the extent of the information provided."

Mr. Ballard said that in recent years the program has paid out an average of $40,000 a year to about 75 individuals for assistance in 40 to 50 cases.

Bill Smiley

IN a recent issue of Canada's so-called national magazine, Macleans, writer Walter Stewart has an article trying to show that Canadians are not the quiet, sober, gray, decent people they think they are.

I could have told him that years ago, and have used it as a theme in this column on some occasions.

Perhaps the self-perpetuating myth, at home and abroad, that we are sensible, tolerant, respectable, and rather dull, has been fostered by our generally colorless press and equally colorless politicians.

The facts, as Stewart pointed out, in describing several brutal and violent strikes, are otherwise.

Canadians, on the whole, are not tolerant. I am young enough to remember when such expressions as "Jew him down" "nigger in the woodpile" "dumb Hunkie" and "greasy wop" were current in the home and on the street.

If you came out with one of those today, you might just be looking for a purple eye or a fat lip from a militant Jew, black, Ukrainian or Italian.

As a result, Canadians have switched their intolerance a bit. We can tell Newfie jokes, because the victims are a long way off. We can tell Paki jokes, because the victims are pretty helpless. And if you are too "tolerant" to indulge in either of these, you can always run down the Yanks, and feel like a virtuous nationalist.

Sober? Canadians are about the worst drinkers in the world, with the possible exception of Scots, who get ugly, Irishmen, who get belligerent, and Poles, who get gloomy. Maybe we are the worst. We get all three.

If you do happen to be a decent, sensible, middle-aged person, and you don't believe a word of this slander, drop in to your local bar or beer parlor on a Friday night. There are scenes that would make Hogarth, chronicler of the 17th century gin places in London, quail in his cravat.

I once sat in a beer parlor and watched this scene. Four commercial fishermen came in. Tough, violent men. They sailed into the beer as though there were going to be a brewery strike within the hour.

And within the hour they were drunk and ugly and vicious. One called another a "sonuvabitch," an old Canadian expletive often used as a term of affection. The other, in maudlin mood, retorted "Don't you talk about my mother like that," cracked his glass in two on the edge of the table, and jammed the ragged edge in the first speaker's face. Blood and language flowed freely, but there wasn't even a fight. It was just another Saturday night in Canada, and not untypical of an evening in that beer parlor.

"Putting the boots" to someone who is down is something you might associate with the slums of Glasgow or Paris or Hamburg. It is not all that unusual on a Canadian Saturday night.

Reasonable? Courteous? Canadians? Don't make me laugh. Just take a drive on a four or six-lane highway. Admittedly, most people fit those two adjective, but there is a large minority who make Canada one of the worst places in the world to drive, as any American will tell you.

Just the other day I was driving on a three-lane, one-way highway. Solid old Bill was in the middle lane, gauge right on the 60-mile per hour limit. Suddenly, a car cut in front of me from the left lane, and, simultaneously, one from the right lane. Both were trying to get into my lane, about 50 feet ahead of me. They almost collided, before veering off like a couple of startled trout. Neither had any reason for passing me. I found myself almost wishing they had crashed, if it weren't for me being the filling in the sandwich.

Ask the people of southern England about the First Brigade of Canadians in World War II. Find out something about the Halifax riots at the end of that war. Ask your Dad if he was among the Canadian troops who booed their own prime minister at Aldershot, in the same struggle.

If I were in a tight spot, I'd just as soon have a Canadian back to back with me as anybody else. We are tough and brave and resourceful. We have a wry gift for not swallowing BS, no matter who is dishing it out.

But let's be honest. We are not a nation of gentle, reasonable, tolerant, dull, sober, clear-thinking nambie pambies, as so many nations, and so many of our own politicians, think us.

We have too much wild blood in us, from all those immigrants who have been pouring into this paradise for 200 years.

We are intolerant. We are bad drinkers and drivers. We have a propensity for violence that may explain our great reputation in a couple of wars.

You can watch it all in the hockey playoffs.

Urge quick return of GIS applications

Health and Welfare Canada officials are urging old age security pensioners in Ontario who have been receiving Guaranteed Income Supplement to re-apply before the March 31 deadline if they want to continue receiving the supplement.

According to W.A. Wright, Regional Director for Old Age Security, some 350,000 applications have already been mailed to pensioners who have been receiving the supplement in Ontario during the past year.

The federal government's Guaranteed Income Supplement is available only to persons receiving Old Age Security Pension. The amount of the supplement is entirely dependent on the income of the pensioner. "It is because of this that people who are now receiving the supplement must re-apply every year," Mr. Wright said.

Recipients of the supplement who have not received the application forms, and pensioners who have not been receiving the supplement but feel that they are eligible should contact: Regional Director, Old Age Security, 789 Don Mills Road, Don Mills, Ontario, M3C 1T5.

Report from Queen's Park

by John Eakins
M.P.P., Victoria-Haliburton

The Acting Minister of Health has warned that Ontario could face a moderate polio epidemic in five or ten years unless children and young adults continue to have regular booster shots against the disease. She said that inoculation cannot be made mandatory, but a regular anti-polio programme should be maintained by everyone until the age of forty. First inoculation shots are important. The Ministry of Health has estimated that as many as 25 per cent of children entering Grade 1 in this province this year will not have received proper immunization against diseases such as polio, diphtheria and rubella (German Measles) - probably because people have tended to become complacent about these diseases as there has not been an epidemic for some years.

Ontario's Energy Minister has strongly condemned the federal government's energy strategy, but both opposition parties in the Legislature have been very critical of the provincial government's alternative of a "blended" price for oil. The federal government wants domestic oil prices to rise to the world level over two or three years, which would add 18 cents a gallon to the price of gasoline and about 78 cents to the price of 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas, which is set at 85% of the price of the heating equivalent in oil. The Provincial Energy Minister called the federal policy "not only folly but basically irresponsible." Liberal Leader Stuart Smith criticized the federal government which he said has not had "a coherent energy policy for quite some time" and the provincial government for having even less policy. He accepted the principle that domestic oil prices should rise toward world prices through "a gradual movement once the crunch is over in our economy". We will be running out of oil supplies in five years, and shall have to go to world prices at that time. The N.D.P. said Ontario's blended price proposal is out of date because it involves old oil at $8 a barrel - a price which "bears no relationship at all to the costs of production". They called for the nationalization of "a company like Imperial Oil", which operates across Canada in all stages of the oil business.

The Attorney General has resisted growing pressure from Opposition Parties for a public inquiry into the operation of Ontario's private laboratories. He considers that such an inquiry would not serve the interests of the public in spite of a recent newspaper report, quoted in the Legislature, that an OPP officer had advised a physician investigator with the college of Physicians and Surgeons to carry a gun during his investigation of the private labs.

The Government has proposed a Public Health Amendment Act which would make it an offence for the owner or operator of a laboratory to "offer, give or agree to give money or valuable consideration" to any person as an inducement or reward for a request for the performance of a test in the laboratory. The Act provides for regulations to limit or prohibit the types of tests which may be carried out in a particular laboratory, and provides that a laboratory licence may not be renewed if it is considered "not in the public interest." Opposition Parties have called the bill superficial and not worthy of support.

Hugh O'Neill, Liberal M.P.P. (Quinte) has called upon the Ontario Health Ministry to issue a directive ordering hospitals not to lock their doors at night. A hospital in Picton was locked when a 3 year old boy - later pronounced dead - was taken there for treatment. The Minister of Health said many hospitals are locked in the evening for security reasons, and indicated that hospital boards are responsible for ensuring a proper level of care is maintained.

Natural Resources News

Public participation in the ongoing process of planning Ontario's provincial parks is being invited by the Ministry of Natural Resources as phase two begins for Blackstone Harbour Provincial Park 20 miles south of Parry Sound.

"With visitors to Ontario's 121 provincial parks topping 11,000,000 in 1975 the Ministry of Natural Resources finds public participation invaluable in planning new facilities to meet increasing needs," Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier remarked today.

Projected as a natural environment park, Blackstone Harbour Provincial Park Proposal - Public Participation Phase 2", a booklet released today by the Ministry, summarizes the issues identified by the public in Phase 1 - the early planning stage and suggests alternative solutions.

"Comments and suggestions that result from this booklet will be used in the preparation of a draft master plan of Blackstone Harbour Park which will be known as Phase 3. It will be distributed to the public whose comments will greatly assist my Ministry in preparation of the final plan," Mr. Bernier said.

Copies of the booklet are available from Ministry offices in Parry Sound, Huntsville and Queen's Park.

Anyone interested in participating in the planning of this park can comment in writing or meet informally with Ministry staff. Comments should be submitted to the District Manager, Ministry of Natural Resources, 4 Miller Street, Parry Sound, Ontario before June 30, 1976.

News from Extendicare

by Charles Plewman

The past 7 days have been busy ones for the staff at Extendicare, between staging activities for the residents and getting ready for today's formal opening.

This is a good chance for you to look the place over. Open House will be held between 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. in the afternoon and 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the evening.

The Ministerial Association has decided to conduct an interdenominational devotional service at the centre every Wednesday at 10 a.m. The first one was held last Wednesday with the Rev. Donald Nicholson of the United Church presiding. His informal approach and helpful talk was much appreciated. At the close of service he moved around and personally met all of the residents. Altogether it was a splendid meeting and one that could set a pattern for those that follow.

The younger boys and girls of Victoria School entertained the residents on Wednesday afternoon, under the excellent leadership of John Fitzgerald. It was touching to see so many representatives of the younger generation mingling with the aged folk during the social hour.

On Thursday the Centre played hosts to a group of Senior Citizens from Wilberforce.

The ladies here were very happy when the new hair dressing salon was opened last week. Exclamations like "Now I feel good"; "Mary, that new hairdo makes you look like a million dollars"; or "Jean, your hair looks beautiful - it makes you look 10 years younger". There must be something in the saying that a woman's hair is her crowning glory. As to the men, well, it looked like they couldn't care less.

Recent arrivals were: Ezra Lott and Maizie Traviss.

New controls on asbestos emissions for Abex Ind. Ltd., Lindsay

Abex Industries Ltd. in Lindsay has agreed to install pollution controls at an estimated cost of $385,000 to meet Ministry of the Environment air quality standards for asbestos emissions, Paul Cockburn, Central Region director for the Ontario Ministry of the Environment announced today.

The company, which manufactures friction material and brake blocks for the transportation industry, uses about 17 tons of asbestos a week in its production.

An air monitoring program in the vicinity of the plant showed that emissions were exceeding the required criterion of 0.04 fibers greater than 5 microns in length per cubic centimeter of air. In four samples, asbestos concentrations ranged from 0.082 fibers per c.c. to 1.01 fibers per c.c.

Following extensive investigations within the plant and the results of the monitoring program, the Ministry recommended further air pollution controls. The existing wet scrubber system which treats all emissions from the plant is being replaced with high efficiency bag filters. The first of these bag filter units should be in operation by late summer with the second and third scheduled for completion before the end of the year.

An in-plant monitoring system will check the effectiveness of pollution control equipment, detecting any increased fiber concentrations in the filtered emissions.

When the filter system is complete, the company will carry out emission testing to check the efficiency of the new system and the Ministry's air monitoring program will continue to assess air quality in the area.

Less smokers survey shows

If you're a smoker, you are a member of a minority group that is steadily becoming smaller, according to Health and Welfare Canada's latest report on the smoking habits of Canadians.

The report, released by Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, points out that the percentage of Canadians who smoke has decreased steadily over the past 10 years so that today an estimated 55.3 percent of the population over the age of 15 years does not smoke.

If persons under the age of 15 were included in the figures, the non-smoking population of the country would be more than 65 percent.

Mr. Lalonde also stressed the need to regulate tobacco smoke in confined or crowded areas accessible to the public in order to minimize the possible adverse effects of smoke on non-smokers. This concern was recently raised in the House of Commons when Bill C-242 was introduced. The Standing Committee on Health, Welfare and Social Affairs is studying the Bill.

Mr. Lalonde also announced that his department has initiated a survey of Health and Welfare employees respecting smoke control in the working environment. The Minister said that most smokers are not aware of the discomfort and other difficulties imposed on those who do not smoke. It is hoped that the survey will assist officials in establishing departmental policy regarding no smoking areas in the office environment.

Persons wishing information on the "hazards of smoking" should write to: O.D. Lewis, Smoking and Health, Health and Welfare Canada, The Journal Building, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 1B6.

Ontario provides jobs for 7,800 young people

About 7,800 jobs for youth will be provided this year through the Ontario Government's summer employment program, Experience '76.

The $10.3 million program was announced recently by Terry Jones, parliamentary assistant to Margaret Birch, Provincial Secretary for Social Development.

Jones, who is responsible for the Ontario Youth Secretariat, said the 38 component programs will be operated through various government ministries often in co-operation with established community agencies such as municipalities, conservation authorities, school boards, travel associations, libraries and museums.

He stressed Experience

'76 is not a make-work project but is designed to expand a young person's education and career interests in jobs that meet local needs and priorities.

"The programs allow community agencies to expand many of their services while at the same time providing students with a meaningful work experience," said Jones.

The jobs opened up by the program are in such fields as agriculture, recreation, culture, environment, tourism, labor, social service and commerce.

Young people will be restoring agricultural artifacts, operating health units, working in art galleries, acting as regional travel counsellors and conducting educational research. Some will work at clearing roadsides, lake-shores and parklands of litter while others will operate their own summer businesses.

"During this time of economic restraint, the Provincial Government anticipates young people will be faced with a very tight job market this summer," said Mr. Jones.

"We hope the private sector will join in our effort to provide as many summer jobs as possible.

The Youth Secretariat plans to distribute guide books on the program to all secondary schools, community colleges, universities and Canada Manpower Centres in the province. Copies can also be obtained by writing Ontario Experience '76, Queen's Park, Toronto.

Province to study OFA hold meeting teen-age drinking

Terry Jones, heading the Ontario Government study of teen-age drinking says he hopes to meet with the youth of at least 20 communities before making his report.

Jones, 37, MPP for Mississauga North and parliamentary assistant to Provincial Secretary for Social Development Margaret Birch, said requests are pouring in from young and old alike anxious to make some contribution to the study.

Premier William Davis announced the study January 21, at the same time he appointed Jones as the man responsible for the Ontario Youth Secretariat.

The Premier said he expects a report by April 1 and that the study results from the concern of his cabinet colleagues and the public over the increasing use of alcohol and its abuse by some segments of the teen-age population.

"It is a serious problem which warrants our full co-operation and determination to seek and implement possible solutions at the earliest possible date," said Premier Davis.

Jones, who has already visited some communities, said he has firm commitments to visit 15 more and expects the total to reach 20. Most of the arrangements are being made by local people rather than experts and professionals from Toronto, he said.

"Every attempt is made to keep the meetings as informal as possible and make sure we reach the young people," said Jones who is accompanied on his visits by an official of the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation.

The usual format is a panel discussion in the local high schools that includes young people with good and bad experiences with alcohol and a public open forum in the evening.

"We make it clear to the young people that we are there to listen and we are not putting them on," said Jones. "As a result we are hearing some pretty startling things and they are making some surprising suggestions for solutions."

Jones said young people are deeply concerned with what is happening around them and many come to him after a session to make further points.

"They tell me they are particularly pleased that the Government is coming to them to get their views on any possible legislation that could effect them," said Jones. "They feel they are participating."

The OFA Executive, in meeting on Wednesday, May 5, issued the following statement with regard to the current milk situation.

"Although the Ontario Federation of Agriculture is very concerned with the effects of the current milk situation on producers, there is no indication of a single party responsible."

OFA believes that the Ontario milk marketing system is one of the best in the world. Recent actions by both provincial and federal governments intended to reverse the trend of declining milk production caused over-reaction by producers. Exceptional weather conditions, which improved fodder quality, further compounded the problem.

Overproduction must cease, but producers need a little time to reduce production or acquire additional quota.

The following suggestions will enable producers to more easily live within the necessary restrictions without hampering the necessary cut-back.

Provincial Government Responsibility

1. Ensure that producers who are trying to do a good job are not harassed by creditors
2. Make forgivable portion of IMPIP loan available in 1976.

Ontario Milk Marketing Board Responsibility

1. Ensure monthly allocation of annual quota is eased.
2. Move quickly to free up additional quota such as temporary incentive for early retirement of can shippers.
3. Take over complete administration of quota transfers. Give special consideration to provide quota to those producers in greatest need, such as new producers and producers who recently increased production. Should finance quota sale to those producers who require it.

4. Should step up movement to single pool.
5. Step up activities directed at increasing per capita consumption.

Federal Responsibility

1. Ease the monthly allocation of annual quota which is unnecessarily harsh and restrictive.
2. Ensure that imported cheese meets health and sanitation standards equivalent to domestic production.
3. Ease pressure on Farm Credit Corporation payments.

The gyrating dollar

The Canadian dollar recently made substantial gains in its value in terms of the United States dollar and other currencies, after being at a discount for a lengthy period. The recovery of the Canadian dollar is all the more substantial, as U.S. currency also has been gaining value in terms of the currencies of many overseas countries.

The higher value of our dollar is particularly welcome to Canadians who want to go to warm regions during the winter. Their Canadian dollars buy more foreign services and goods. Those Canadians who want to import foreign goods also welcome the higher Canadian dollar value.

Turn this process around and you will find that a good many Canadians are not quite so pleased by the appreciation of our dollar. It makes it somewhat more expensive for residents of the United States and overseas countries to vacation in Canada. Foreign vegetables, fruits, flowers and other agricultural products can be brought into Canada more cheaply. The same applies to industrial products.

If Canadian importers find it easier to bring goods into Canada to compete with home-produced goods, Canadian producers find it harder to sell their products in foreign markets. A higher value for the Canadian dollar hits a lot of producers in rural as well as urban areas. Thus the gyrations of the dollar in exchange markets are not merely something for financiers to follow with interest.

There are other effects following appreciating Canadian dollar values that we ought to know about, but it may be helpful to consider first why our dollar has moved up. Most of have read, in the past, about those mythical Gnomes of Zurich who were playing yo-yo with currencies. They were speculators who took advantage of unstable currency markets. The Gnomes have not been moving the Canadian dollar around, but their second cousins have been doing so.

Last year, a good many Canadians were buying U.S. stocks because they thought the U.S. economy was in better shape than ours. A good many Canadians were also transferring savings to the U.S. -- selling their Canadian dollars and buying U.S. dollars. That helped to weaken the Canadian dollar.

That also made it somewhat more difficult for the Canadian economy to recover. The Investment Dealers Association of Canada has reported that less than 3.5 cents of every dollar raised by the securities industry in Canada last year was used to increase risk capital. When there is a shortage of risk capital, modernization and expansion of Canadian business stagnates. Soon, less wealth is produced.

Until quite recently, nearly every government body in Canada was preoccupied with the redistribution of wealth, to the exclusion of its creation. That was what many people wanted them to do. As their incomes were smaller than their good intentions, provincial and municipal governments borrowed huge sums to hand out.

Last year, provincial and municipal governments together borrowed about $5.5 billion, $2 billion more than the years before. That kind of financing adds to inflation, but that is not our present subject. A very large part of that money was borrowed from foreigners, mainly in U.S. money markets. Government treasurers said it was advantageous to borrow abroad, which was true, because interest rates in Canada have been very high. So the money was not obtained cheaply, not by any means cheaply.

For technical reasons, an inflow of foreign money tends to raise the exchange value of the domestic currency. If still more borrowing is expected, the upward pressure becomes greater. That is, to a large degree, why our dollar recently went to a premium. It was expected foreigners were going to be asked for another $2 billion right away.

As yet, Canadian provincial and municipal governments have not gone as deeply into debt as New York City, which is bankrupt, and will have to reduce its style of living drastically, because lenders now will not lend. But sooner or later -- that is New York City's trouble -- borrowed money has to be paid back, and right away, interest has to be paid. That starts the outflow of money and the dollar starts to lose value.

That, in its turn, would be helpful to Canada's farm communities and to Canadian industry. But if living beyond our means -- that is, borrowing abroad -- has weakened those communities they, like any person who has gone through a lengthy illness, may find that it takes a long time to wipe out the ill effects.

Knits a Fabric for all Seasons

K NIT fabrics today don't just mean woollens or heavy winter doubleknits. Almost all fabrics used today, particularly for clothing, are knits of one kind or another. The few notable fashion exceptions being the Indian-type cheesecloth and denim. These are examples of woven fabric.

Knits' popularity has good reason. From wool doubleknits to delicate acetate and nylon, these textiles pay special dividends by staying wrinkle-free for wearing or packing and by demonstrating superior draping abilities -- in other words hanging well.

Most knits, depending of course on the original fibre, are washable -- even the winterweights. Naturally you should first check the label before embarking on a laundry binge, but if your garment is washable, go ahead and wash it. Washing usually results in a cleaner garment than dry cleaning, and colors stay brighter.

Machine washing, if the label says yes, is fine. Usually it is best to avoid hot water or harsh detergents, as these can at times cause fabrics to mat. Place your garments loosely in the washer, add your favorite detergent and a half-cup of a bleach substitute such as Borateem-Plus to keep the colors bright.

Don't overload the washer. Too many clothes result in improper washing and often a lot of extra creases.

When the wash cycle has finished, take the garment out, shake it well and tumble dry on a low heat. As soon as the garment is thoroughly dried, remove it from the dryer and hang it up, straightening seams, collars and cuffs. Press gently if necessary, pulling garment into original shape if it has become stretched. It's often a good idea to use a clean cloth as a pressing cloth, between the iron and the fabric.

Pretreat stains by using a borax-based product safe for all fabrics such as Borateem-Plus. Stains allowed to set in the wash are often impossible to remove later.

Knits are, unfortunately, easily snagged. A nail, a ring, or a pet can often snag a thread, and leave it dangling. Never cut the thread. Turn the garment inside out, and with a needle poke the snag through to the inside. A little stretching around the fabric and you'll never know where the snag was.

Flowers of Hope

A new Commandment I give unto you, that you love one another; even as I have loved you, that you also love one another. John 13-34.

In April 1961, with this Commandment ringing in their hearts, a group of persons met in the Mennonite Church in Minden to hear Mr. Peter Gomery of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded, discuss the formation of an Association for Haliburton and District. From this nucleus of people, composed of, Mrs. Gertrude Miller, Public Health Nurse, Mr. and Mrs. E. Deterling, Mr. and Mrs. E. Sanderson of Wilberforce; Mrs. Margaret Stoughton, Teacher of Tory Hill School, Mr. and Mrs. R.H. Anderson of Tory Hill; Rev. and Mrs. A. Brubacher, Mr. and Mrs. M. Shantz, of Minden; Mr. and Mrs. W. Besse, Mr. and Mrs. M. Jones of Eagle Lake; Mr. and Mrs. N. Nimigon, Mr. and Mrs. M. Biagi, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Dawson of Haliburton; Mr. and Mrs. John Hill of Lochlin; Mr. Nelson Ward School Inspector, and other interested persons, who unfortunately have escaped the writer's memory, a strong Association was formed.

The first school was in the Christian Education Building of Haliburton United Church.

The Association was responsible for all expenses and paid $20.00 per month for rent and employed 3 teachers - Mrs. Ray Welch, Mrs. Fielding and Mrs. C. Biagi, there were approximately 7 pupils. Through wonderful public financial support the school operated and ran very smoothly. In 1963 in the Eastern part of the county an auxiliary of women was started to assist in finances. This group was named the J.F. Kennedy Auxiliary.

In 1965 the Tory Hill School became vacant and the children were transferred from Haliburton. Mr. Mervin Shantz was the very capable and helpful bus driver. Mrs. C. Biagi was principal and Mrs. M. Hewitt assistant. November 1965, saw another change, retarded pupils from North Hastings were brought by bus to Tory Hill. This gave the Haliburton Association three 'FIRSTS' in Ontario. They were the first Rural Association, they had the first Rural School, and for the first time two Associations worked together to supply schooling for their children.

Those early days of the Association were chaotic, our budget was always low. Mention of money brings to mind the faithful service of Mr. G. Dawson who from the first has been a most loyal member, and, of course, our treasurer.

As the children grew older a need for a Sheltered Workshop was recognized. The Association was able to rent a large building in Tory Hill, which eliminated bus problems. The J.F. Kennedy Auxiliary paid the $50.00 per month rent, Mrs. L. Hunter was the first director, followed by Mrs. Gloria Billings, who conducted the workshop capably for three years. In 1972 the School and Workshop were transferred to Lakeview Centre in Haliburton. In 1974 Mr. David Woodhall became Director of the Workshop and Dave is still our very capable Director. The School-age children were integrated into the Senior Elementary School in September 1974 and the Sheltered Workshop became Arch Industries, employing the members of the Sheltered Workshop to make wooden toys, stuff envelopes and other jobs they can do. All monies of Arch Industries are used directly in the operation of the Workshop.

The Government underwrites approximately 80% of the cost of operating the workshop. The balance is raised locally through donations and the employees of Arch Industries.

The road that was started by a few people back in 1961 has been long and oft times bumpy, but I am sure that each one of them can look back and say with pride IT WAS WORTH IT.

Haliburton Highlights

One of the largest crowds ever to attend Activity night were on hand at the Haliburton Highlands Senior Elementary School last Wednesday evening. It was a fun filled night with plenty of sports and music.

Stedmans at Haliburton have added another addition to their present store which will have outdoor products such as garden equipment, lawn mowers, lawn furniture and many other items too numerous to mention.

The tennis courts at Rotary Beach are very busy these days and it won't be too much longer before swimming will get underway at the beach. The entire Rotary beach area needs to be cleaned up and there is more debris than usual on the beach area.

Canadian Patenat no. 974,915 describes a new concept in ski lifts, an over-sized conveyor belt that carries seated skiers up the hill. The belt is wide enough for skiers to comfortably straddle it, and close enough to the ground that you can safely hop off if necessary. The system, according to inventor Robin Ling of Massachusetts, would also carry more skiers and be easier to maintain than the lifts now in use.

The Minden Recreation Committee are going all out to bring outstanding entertainment to the Minden Community Centre. On Sunday, May 23rd a dance will be held featuring "Liverpool". Ian Tyson is coming on July 3rd and the musical group "Foot in Coldwater" will be there on July 4th.

Bible Teaching Seminar with Rev. L. Pritchard continues at the Full Gospel Lighthouse in Haliburton with meetings tonight (Wednesday) Thursday, Friday and Sunday evenings. They commence each night at 7:30 p.m. A friendly welcome to all.

Slushy road conditions caused by an unseasonable three inch snowfall overnight caused a "rash" of minor accidents in the area covered by the Lindsay OPP although other police departments in Lindsay and area reported only a few.

Lindsay OPP said they investigated four minor accidents the first of which occurred about 7:30 a.m. as people were on their way to work.

Lindsay police reported only one minor mishap which occurred early in the midnight shift.

Minden OPP reported one minor accident overnight but it happened before the snow started to fall.

Coboconk OPP said they investigated one accident in which a car went into a ditch in the Kinmount area about 8 a.m.

Tim Priest of West Guilford will be the guest speaker when the Brotherhood of Anglican Churchmen hold their monthly corporate communion and breakfast at St. George's Anglican Church in Haliburton, this Sunday morning May 16th at 8 a.m. Tim who is a youth leader at the West Guilford Gospel Chapel was educated through the local school system, takes an active part in the ministry at the Chapel. He is presently employed at Western Tire at Haliburton.

COME GARDENING

TIME TO TEND THE LAWN

April showers bring May flowers, so the old saying goes. Even as I write this column the forsythia is starting to show color and crocus, early tulips and the Gardener's New Year are right at hand. Now come the early spring chores of preparing the gardens for another productive year.

First and foremost is the removal of debris from the lawn and border areas. Winter has played havoc in some areas with grasses leaving snow mold, dollar spot, and brown patch. It makes the home gardener feel that the fall preparation for winter was in vain.

Not so Neighbors! Many of the grasses that look dull and even brown, are dormant. After a good feeding of Golden Vigoro, they'll sit up and take notice.

Now is a good time to get out the "spring-toothed" rake and gently sweep the lawn area - it's best to remove winter debris, like twigs, papers, even tin cans that have accumulated on the lawn. Though fall is or has been considered the ideal time to sow lawn seed, it can be done successfully this month.

Don't just scatter the seeds on top of the existing grass. Make furrows with a hard toothed rake. This won't injure the lawn, but will make a bed for the new seed to get started in. It usually takes from 21 to 28 days for good lawn seed, such as Merion or Kentucky Blue to germinate and become established. If sown in April, it should be well established before June. It should be sown in such a manner that the seed can be imbedded in the soil, lightly covered, and kept moist.

It's not difficult to raise a good stand of turf if it is given a good start early in the season. Fertilize, get the growing grass off to a good start and warm spring rains will prove beneficial for all growth.

Make sure you follow the directions on the Vigoro fertilizer bag. The best methods of fertilizer applications have been well researched in the Vigoro laboratory.

All is not turf management for the month of April. Several chores may be done so you are ready when weather permits. For example, how's that lawn mower operating? Blades sharp and ready for another season's work? Garden tools should be cleaned and free of rust. Use a little fine sand-paper to remove any rust and apply a light covering of oil.

Pruning shears must be sharp or they will tear the clean cuts you want to make on hedges, roses, flowering shrubs. When frost danger is past, sharp, keen pruning shears zip through my rose beds, pruning them back to three nice fat buds for those I want to exhibit and to the sixth eye for those I want for free flowering beauty in the garden. This applies to hybrid tea rose bushes. Floribunda roses get the light treatment. I leave about 15 inches of cane for them to produce their clusters of bloom. My climbers seldom if ever get a severe pruning treatment. All I do to them is remove the tips that have been damaged by frost.

As the buds start swelling and are ready to burst, all my roses get their first feeding with Vigoro Rose Food to supplement any food that was there in the last fall. I like to get on an insecticide early in the growing year. I've found that a spraying with a dormant lime sulphur spray that I use on the fruit trees removes overwintering insects and fungi.

It isn't too early to plan your food garden. Many of my readers who followed my suggestions last year (and this includes vegetable growers from coast to coast) told me they had great results following my vegetable garden chart recommendations. If you are just starting a vegetable garden this year, drop me a note and I'll see that you have a copy in time for this year's planting.

Have a good month of planning and planting.

Canada Manpower news

During the month of April 1976, the Peterborough Canada Manpower Centre placed 433 persons in regular full-time employment including 7 who were sent to jobs in other parts of Ontario. This placement figure exceeded last month's figure of 256, reports Public Relations Officer, John Mahoney.

In addition, 124 people were placed in temporary or casual jobs, he said.

Under the Canada Manpower Mobility Program 12 people were assisted in their move to areas for employment where their skills were in demand. Seven other people were authorized for exploratory assistance for job interviews in other areas.

The Canada Manpower Centre, which services Peterborough and Haliburton Counties, plus the Townships of Emily, Somerville and Verulam in Victoria County as well as Percy and Seymour Townships in Northumberland County, as well as the Town of Campbellford, processed 2,428 new and revived applications for employment during the month. A total of 6,551 persons were registered at the Canada Manpower Centre as being unemployed and seeking work at the end of the month. In addition to this, he continued, 454 students registered at the Canada Manpower Centre for Students are now available for full-time summer employment.

There are 299 persons presently attending retraining courses at Sir Sandford Fleming College. A course for welder fitter starts 31 May 1976 and there are places still open. Interested people should contact their counsellor at the Canada Manpower Centre.

Victoria-Haliburton N.D.P. Association news

On Saturday, May 1, the Ontario New Democratic Party held a special Provincial Council meeting at the Holiday Inn on Airport Road in Toronto. The meeting was attended by delegates from the entire province. Victoria-Haliburton was represented by Fred McLaughlin, Vice-President of the Victoria-Haliburton NDP Association. The meeting was held in response to recommendations of the financial committee which was set up after the fall election. The recommendations were debated and put into resolution form. They will be presented at the Annual Convention to be held in June in Kingston. This procedure allows for participation in decision making at the grass root level. On Monday, May 3, an executive meeting of the Victoria-Haliburton NDP Association was held in Fenelon Falls. Mr. McLaughlin presented the recommendations of the financial committee. It was agreed that the changes in the financial structure will put the New Democratic Party in a better financial position for the next election and will help to strengthen rural riding associations such as Victoria-Haliburton. A membership report was given by Membership Secretary George Hughes. Membership in this riding association has more than doubled during the past year. Association President, Art Field, gave special credit to George Hughes and Fred McLaughlin for their effort in the membership drive. A school for publicity and finance is to be held in Bolton on the weekend of May 7. Victoria-Haliburton NDP Association will send two representatives, Ralph Hart and Maurice Windatt. Special recognition was given to Howard Graham, Chief Financial Officer for the riding association. Mr.

Graham has been the Treasurer and C.F.O. for several years now. He will not seek re-election at the next general meeting for the election of officers because of added personal responsibilities. The services of Mr. Graham will be greatly missed, however, he will be available for advice for a new officer.

Other matters were discussed under general business. It was decided to hold a general membership meeting in mid June for the election of officers. Members will receive notification of particulars two weeks prior to the meeting.

National energy policy for Canadians

On May 6, the Premier of Ontario, at a meeting at Sussex Drive in Ottawa, argued with nine other Premiers and the Prime Minister of Canada for a rational method of pricing energy so that the consumers of Canada could be protected while providing fair return to the producing provinces.

On May 3, the Premier stood in the Legislature of the Province along with Mr. Timbrell, the Minister of Energy, arguing in that Legislature for support, so that Ontario politicians might stand together in fighting for a fair break for the Canadian energy consumer.

Unfortunately, but typically, the minority Progressive Conservative Government did not receive that support from the other parties in Ontario.

An examination of where the parties stood indicates more clearly than has been the case on many issues in the past who stands where on issues of vital importance to Ontarians.

The Progressive Conservative Government called for a blended price approach to energy pricing - an approach that would allow the consumer to benefit from the lower price of oil already in the system while providing fair increases based on new oil finding costs to the producing provinces.

This would have resulted in a very tiny increase in the price of gasoline.

The Liberals had another approach. Dr. Smith himself expounded it. Ontario should among other things allow the price of oil in Canada to rise to the world price.

A position, by the way, that will probably mean more than a dollar a gallon for gasoline in Ontario in the very near future.

He wanted to make sure that NO money for exploration will get to the oil companies. He wanted NO return to the producing provinces.

The Liberals have managed to propose the worst of all possible worlds. No money for exploration to the oil companies, no return to the producing provinces, yet a massive increase for the consumers of Ontario.

That type of proposal takes talent.

The NDP proposal took less talent... it is the classic NDP position - public ownership for the oil companies and an end to any free enterprise and private economy in this area.

Interestingly, when faced with a hard and tough consumer problem for Ontario, the Liberals, in support of Ottawa, push for a world price, no new exploration and massive increases to the people of Ontario. The NDP hides behind the dogma of its party and refuses to deal head on with a critical problem for the people of this province.

The Progressive Conservative Government is offering Ontario and Canada a refreshing, novel and creative way to handle a tough problem.... which is what government is all about.

Trent Audio Library Program helps handicapped students

The Trent University Audio Library Program is helping visually and physically handicapped students in Ontario obtain reading material required in university and college courses. Director Stewart Hayter is a former handicapped student who can well appreciate the needs of present students trying to compete in the secondary school program. He says he knows only too well the frustration involved when the proper text is not available.

The Audio Library Program, unique in the English language universities of Ontario, provides a systematic, prompt response to requests for non-print, academic material. As each request is received, the book's availability is checked in Trent's own growing library of taped texts and in catalogues of material available elsewhere. If the book is not obtainable, the Trent Audio Library will arrange taping of the text by its staff of volunteer and professional readers. These tapes become masters from which duplicates are made and forwarded to students upon request.

The program began with a grant from the Ontario Ministry of Colleges and Universities and has continued with provincial support, grants from the federal government, plus private funding. It is growing as quickly as possible but still needs assistance, both in terms of financial support and volunteer readers.

You can save up to 30% of your fuel dollar.... EVERY year!

Home heating and cooling costs have doubled in Canada during the last few years, and with our ever diminishing fuel supply this trend will continue!

As Government has pointed out, needless waste occurs in 95% of Canadian homes due to poor insulation. When fuel was cheap our houses were inadequately insulated, and you the homeowners are now paying through the nose for it!

60% of the heat loss in an average home occurs through the roof; 12% through the walls. Your attic, therefore, should be your first consideration.

IS YOUR HOME PROPERLY INSULATED?

Probably not: You could check it yourself, or we would be pleased to do it for you. No cost or obligation to you. Due to settling, most insulation loses up to 70% of its effectiveness. As a minimum it should cover the attic joists.

HOW MUCH INSULATION DO I NEED?

Contrary to opinion, 'inches' of insulation by themselves mean nothing. Effectiveness is based on the heat loss resistance value. (R-value) which varies with different products. The higher the R-number, the better the insulation, allowing you to save money with a lesser thickness. The Government suggest a minimum R-20 for maximum fuel saving.

NOT ALL INSULATIONS ARE CREATED EQUAL!

Table showing depth in inches of various materials to give the same R-value

As you can see, THERMTRON INSULATION has the best heat loss resistance. It is C.M.H.C. accepted and UNDERWRITER'S LABORATORY listed for Fire Resistance! It is best in that it is vermin retardent, sound absorbing and negligible settling means it stays full thickness. The Government rates our material best!

HOW MUCH DOES ALL THIS COST?

Less than you may think. Usually less than you buying material at the lumber yard and doing it yourself! We repeat; our professionals apply THERMTRON INSULATION in only an hour or two with no mess or fuss for less than you can buy inferior material at the lumber yard! Keep warmer in winter, cooler in summer.

REMEMBER - YOU PAY FOR INSULATION WHETHER YOU HAVE IT OR NOT -- AND IT PAYS FOR ITSELF.

Ontario Hydro purchases in 1975 totalled $1.4 billion

Ontario Hydro's 1975 purchases totalled $1.4 billion, $100 million less than its 1974 record high.

Hydro's annual procurement report, released today, notes outstanding commitments to the end of 1975, excluding long-term fuel arrangements, totalled almost $2.2 billion.

With the exception of primary fuels such as oil and coal, 78 per cent of the total value of 1975 purchases was directed to Canadian sources. This compared with 70 per cent the previous year.

H.E. Kennedy, Director of Supply Procurement, said the substantial increase in awards to Canadian suppliers "is indicative of Ontario Hydro's ongoing efforts to 'buy Canadian' and stimulate the development of Canadian suppliers wherever possible."

"Of the total awards to Canadian suppliers, 86 per cent were placed in Ontario."

Purchase of primary fuels increased to $366 million in 1975 from $197 million in 1974. Coal purchases, mainly from the U.S., accounted for 74 per cent, natural gas, 14 per cent, nuclear fuels, 7 per cent (both from Canadian sources), and Venezuelan and Arabian oil, 5 per cent.

Coal consumption in 1975 remained the same as in each of the two previous years, about 7.5 million tons. Market and labor forces in the U.S. caused a sharp rise in the price of coal for 1974 shipment. Delivered coal in 1975 averaged $30 a ton, compared with $20 in 1974 and $13 in 1973.

Negotiations continued with Canadian uranium suppliers, aimed at securing long term contracts through the year 2000. Current contracts will meet almost all of the predicted requirements through 1980 and part of the projected need to 1985.

During the year Hydro signed uranium agreements with Shell Canada to explore in Northern Ontario and the Northwest Territories, and with AMOK Limited, to explore in Saskatchewan. The program is intended to help ensure the further development of long-term reserves and will not replace Hydro's need for major amounts of uranium from known Canadian deposits.

New booklet deals with living in condominiums

The problems of settling into and getting involved in a condominium development are dealt with in a new publication released today by the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations.

Called "Living in a Condominium," the 16-page booklet is intended as a guide to some of the most common difficulties of condominium living and provides advice for dealing with condominium problems.

"With the recent proliferation of this type of housing accommodation," Consumer Minister Sidney Handelman said, "my Ministry thought it important to provide condominium owners and prospective purchasers with information which should enable them to enjoy their homes with a minimum of problems."

The booklet is set up in a question-and-answer format stressing the rights and obligations of the condominium owner. "Living in a Condominium," is a companion publication to "Buying a Condominium," which was published by the Ministry in 1975.

Copies of both booklets are available free of charge by writing: Ontario Consumer, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario, M4Y 1Y7.

The Trade Show will be the largest exhibition of dump truck equipment ever assembled in Canada. Dump truck owners are invited.

Sponsored by the Ontario Trucking Association in cooperation with the regional dump truck associations, the Seminar will discuss legislation emanating from the 1975 Ministerial Inquiry into the Dump Truck Industry.

The program includes the tarping of loads, vehicle safety and inspection, gross weights, fuel conservation, licensing and equipment trends.

Speakers and panelists from the Ministries of Transportation and Communications, Energy and Labour, plus aggregate producers, road contractors and engineers will participate.

From the Chamber

We noticed in last week's paper that there is some concern in the area due to fraudulent business practices. At the same time we talked to one of our members who has experienced some very unsatisfactory work from a local contractor. These situations can prove very costly in both money and time and frustration. We do not have a Better Business Bureau here with whom you can check, but we do have an active Chamber of Commerce.

We are not in a position to guarantee anyone's workmanship but we are in touch with a lot of business people every day, and are certainly aware of some tradesmen that should not be recommended. Our 1976 directory lists all of our members who are involved in all types of businesses. This is a good guide to good business people in our county, who actively support the Chamber of Commerce in order to improve our economic community. We suggest you consult this booklet when you wish to deal with anyone in business. If you are still in doubt call us at the office and we will advise you to the best of our ability. If you don't have a Haliburton Directory available phone us and we will be glad to mail one out to you. Your Chamber of Commerce is the next best thing to a Better Business Bureau.

There are still a lot of empty racks in the Information Booth awaiting brochures. All members are invited to display their information at the booth, just send or bring it in to us. Although the summer hours will not be decided until this week, we expect the office to be open week-ends starting this week. Specific hours of operation will be announced in next week's column.

Brad Sales opened the doors of his new store in Haliburton last week and plans to celebrate his official "Grand Opening" on the May 24th weekend. Brad is justly proud of his new Cordell Carpets store and we are proud to have them as members. The store features floor coverings, drapery, paint and wallpaper, and their tasteful method of displaying items is bound to give you many ideas of what you can do in your home. The store is located in Haliburton next to Ricard Real Estate. Irwin Construction are planning the construction of additional stores in this location.

The Rotary Club of Haliburton have finalized plans to stage Championship Powerboat racing on Head Lake this June 19th weekend. They have enlisted the support of the Lake Kashagawigamog Tourist Association and the Haliburton Legion to stage this major event which will bring an anticipated crowd of over 500 boat racing enthusiasts to our area. The Rotary Club stands to possibly lose money on this venture, but saw it as a worthwhile project to encourage tourism in our area. That's good thinking, and we congratulate them and wish them success.

H.H.S.S. students study crafts

For the past three weeks, the students of H.H.S.S. have had the opportunity to take free handicraft lessons taught by members of the Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts. Over forty students participated receiving expert instruction in macrame, pottery, sketching, batik and creative clothing.

The students welcomed the chance to learn the basic skills of their chosen craft. One girl, who took creative clothing, said she had always wanted to learn how to applique and embroider, and was glad that the Guild gave her the opportunity to explore this craft.

The Guild offered these lessons to promote interest in art and crafts, as well as presenting students with an opportunity to apply for a scholarship to a course at the Haliburton School of Fine Arts. An Open House will be held at Lakeview Centre early in June where the students' work will be on display.

All of the students appreciated the time and effort put forth by their volunteer instructors. The Guild is to be commended for giving students the chance to explore their creative possibilities.

Glee Club ready!

For the past 8 months, the members of the H.H.S.S. Glee Club have been working toward one goal - to make this year's musical production a success. For the past 7 years, under the excellent guidance of Mr. Bill Gliddon, this extra-curricular theatre group has presented annually an outstanding musical production. This year's presentation, "Tom Jones", is the first 3-act work ever undertaken by the club. This has meant that more time, practice and effort has been put into this production than ever before. This enthusiastic group of people have given up week-ends and most of their spare time to learn, practice and re-practice lines, action and music. Plan to attend one of the evening performances on May 12, 13, 14 and 15. It will prove to be an enjoyable evening for all.

Parks open May 15

The hustle and bustle of another season announces the opening of the St. Lawrence Parks Commission facilities, on May 15.

Along the St. Lawrence River from the Bay of Quinte to the Quebec Border, the Parks Commission is opening its 14 major campgrounds to outdoor enthusiasts from across the country. Last year over half a million campers were accommodated at the more than 2,500 tent and trailer sites operated on over 7,000 acres of Commission lands. These modern campgrounds offer a variety of riverside tranquility and entertainment, with supervised sandy beaches for swimming and boating. Lush picnic areas, Nature Trails, riding and boat launching facilities are conveniently near. A championship 18-hole golf course follows the Aultsville Creek, near Upper Canada Village, and proves as challenging as it is beautiful. A fully licenced lounge and dining room are located in the Club House.

Upper Canada Village, just east of Morrisburg, offers visitors an opportunity to see what pioneer life was like in early Eastern Ontario.

This living museum is comprised of some thirty-five buildings and their contents which have been painstakingly restored. Crafts and demonstrations, from spinning and weaving to blacksmithing and cheese-making bring history alive for visitors.

Old Fort Henry, in Kingston, recalls the same early 1800's period as the Village. The Fort Henry Guard performs precision drills with authentic uniforms and equipment of 1867 as part of a daily routine. In addition, a spectacular Retreat Ceremony takes place during July and August on Wednesday and Saturday evenings. Rifle and cannon fire echo and rebound off the Fort's old stone walls transporting spectators back to the 1860's when these drills might have been performed in earnest.

Highways 401 and 2 offer easy access by car to all Commission sites. But for those who wish to use other means of transportation, a Marina and grass landing strip for light aircraft are available closeby Upper Canada Village. From most of the Commission's campgrounds, it is just a short trip to either the Fort or Village.

Admission fees for all Commission sites and activities are the same as in 1975. So come along and enjoy history and recreation in action, at the St. Lawrence Parks Commission starting May 15th.

U.I.C. prosecution

George Lesperance of Dunsford pleaded guilty to 3 counts of false statements in regards to particulars of employment of his Unemployment Insurance claim for benefits.

The presiding Judge G. Inrig of the Lindsay court, fined Lesperance $100.00 for each of the three offences of fraud or 30 days in jail for default, if not paid by the 27th of July, 1976.

Judge Inrig advised the claimant to pay back the overpayment outstanding of $382.00 direct to the Unemployment Insurance Commission by an arrangement suitable to the Commission.

Pickering Nuclear Plant returns to full power

Unit 4 at Ontario Hydro's Pickering nuclear generating station, east of Toronto, was restored to service at 4:22 a.m. today and is operating at "essentially full power", says Station Manager Kevin Keane.

The 500,000 kilowatt unit had been out of production since March 31 due to a damaged conductor in its generator. During the shut down, Hydro also decided to repair 10 seal joints in the cooling system.

Unit 4 was also out of service for about 10 months during the latter half of 1975 and the early part of 1976 while 52 faulty pressure tubes were being repaired. The leaking joints were not directly associated with the earlier problem.

There was no release of radioactivity to the atmosphere and no hazard to the general public or station staff during either shut down.

Pickering's three remaining generators ran at virtually full capacity while Unit 4 was experiencing its problems. The station, which became the world leader in nuclear energy production in mid January, has produced more than 50 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity.

It costs about $5,000 per hour to burn alternate fuels to replace Pickering's nuclear energy.

OTTAWA and Small Business

Our decline and fall?

By KENNETH McDONALD
The Canadian Federation of Independent Business*

Blaming Ottawa for controls is like blaming dogs for barking — it's the natural thing to do. Governments are restrictive, not innovative. Whenever there's a problem, their reaction is to frame a new regulation to deal with it. That's the easy way.

What takes courage is to follow the opposite course — to leave people alone in the belief that, on their own, they can best decide what is needed.

In Canada, governments are not unlike the parent who told a child: "Run and see what your brother is doing — and tell him to stop." It's instinctive, but it's also very dangerous. As a result of this attitude, originating in Ottawa and duplicated at the other two levels, Canadians are pre-occupied with fighting each other. Governments seek new ways to restrain the initiative of citizens who then have to waste time and energy in easing the effect of the restraint.

When government reaches a certain size it feeds on itself. The market economy which supports the country dwindles under its impact.

Instead of government, business and labour working together to advance Canada's progress, the three groups are at loggerheads. Businesses and other organizations, which should be concentrating on improving their products and finding new markets for them, are forced to assume a political role.

Canada agonizes over problems of the past while in Japan, where government's whole motivation is positive, all sectors of society are oriented towards solving the problems of tomorrow.

The failure of government controls goes back to 2350 B.C. when a wise Sumerian ruler swept away the bureaucracy, established honest weights and measures and reformed the currency. "From one end of the land to the other ... there were no tax collectors."

...

In 300 A.D. the Roman Emperor Diocletian's price-fixing edict prescribed death for transgressors. After much bloodshed and starvation, that law was repealed. But the Empire's decline and fall were due to the same debasement of the currency, the same ballooning of the bureaucracy which are destroying the Canadian economy in 1976.

...

Controlling the money supply, freezing, then reducing the civil service, breaking up the power groups by strengthening the market sector — unless the control period is used to deal with the underlying causes of inflation, support for the program by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business and the small business community will quickly evaporate.

Anti-Inflation Board oil price intervention

OTTAWA - The Anti-Inflation Board today announced it would accept modified price increases proposed by Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., Texaco Canada Ltd., and BP Canada based on cost increases since October 14, 1975. The Board ruled it would accept a weighted average increase of 1.1 cents a gallon, about one-third less than the companies' initial proposed price increases, based on cost increases since February 1975.

A similar decision was rendered by the Board recently in the case of Imperial Oil, which also had requested price increases based on the February date, which represents the point in time when the Federal government asked the oil companies to defer price increases.

The 1.1 cent-a-gallon increase is a weighted average of price increases in petroleum products. In the case of Gulf Oil, this amounts to 1.39 cents a gallon for motor gasolines, diesel and light fuel oils and a 0.37 cent-a-gallon increase for other petroleum products.

Texaco's increase is a uniform 1.02 cent-a-gallon on heavy fuel oil and 1.26 cents a gallon for all other petroleum products.

Gulf Oil's increase is effective April 24; Texaco's May 12, and BP's May 13.

The AIB was notified of the proposed price increases through its pre-notification procedure. Gulf Oil had requested an increase of 2.2 cents a gallon on motor gasolines, diesel and light fuel oils, and a 0.5 cent-a-gallon increase on other petroleum products. Texaco had requested a uniform 1.29 cent-a-gallon increase, plus rail transportation costs on the basis of increases incurred since February 1975. BP had asked for a 0.61 cent-a-gallon increase on heavy fuel oil and a 1.88 cent-a-gallon increase on other products.

"Ontario budget a sham," says union manager

Ontario's provincial budget is a sham as it relates to areas of real economic concern to Ontario residents says a spokesman for provincial government employees.

G.G. Norman, general manager of the Ontario Public Service Employees Union, said the provincial budget completely ignores key sectors of the provincial economy dealing with unemployment, housing and the redistribution of wealth.

Norman said that if predictions of the 1976 budget were realized as far as housing is concerned, the end result will still be fewer houses than were predicted by Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough a year ago.

He said the 1976 budget contains no provision for expanding housing programs in Ontario other than the continuation of last year's program which saw housing starts in Ontario total 10,000 fewer than the prediction.

He said that applying the same arithmetic to 1976, "we can expect that the housing starts this year will be about 8,000 below even last year's prediction."

"That is some success when you consider the hundreds of thousands of people in this province who cannot afford to purchase their own homes."

Norman said the government was all but mute on unemployment, one of the major challenges facing Ontario today.

"The government estimates that in 1976 there will be 116,000 new jobs created, however there will be 124,000 persons to fill those jobs, leaving a total of 8,000 more persons unemployed in 1976."

He said that last year the government underestimated the number unemployed by 37,000. If the same miscalculation is carried into this year, Ontario workers can do nothing but fear the economic prospects this year in Ontario.

"And it is interesting to note that while unemployment is rampant, this government preaches restraint, lopping another 1,000 employees off the government work force. It appears as if it would rather have unemployment than gainfully employed, tax-paying employees."

"With unemployment hovering at about a quarter of a million able-bodied workers I cannot understand why this government should pride itself on eliminating jobs, making many people totally dependent on public support."

As far as shifting the sources of provincial revenue onto those who are most able to pay, Norman said the budget is a complete farce.

"The government has lowered corporate taxes and finds more revenue from personal income tax, sales tax and Ontario Hospital Insurance premiums. This is a regressive tax policy if ever there was one."

"Virtually all the tax increases in Ontario are from the individuals, not the corporations. Yet if we look at corporation profits over the past few years, we find they have far outstripped increases in personal incomes."

"The budget predicts that corporate profits will rise by 15 per cent this year. Despite this increase in corporate profits, the level of corporate contributions to provincial revenues will fall," Norman said.

"While the government gives this tax break to corporations, it attempts to sell the idea of wage controls to Ontario voters. I want every resident of Ontario -- every person who is tied to wage controls -- to realize that the corporations this year will be contributing even less than they were last year to the revenues of this province."

Norman said the budget serves only to widen the gap between the haves and the have-nots of this province.

Banker sees no housing money shortage

A banking spokesman predicts that new mortgage commitments by the chartered banks this year will be nearly double those of 1975.

C. L. Townend, chairman of the mortgage committee of the Canadian Bankers' Association, estimates mortgage approvals by the banks this year at between $4 billion and $4.5 billion compared to $2.45 billion in 1975.

"These plans were made before the federal government guideline that it would require the private lenders to provide an additional $750 million for specific mortgages in 1976."

Speaking to a meeting of the Ontario Mortgage Brokers Association, Mr. Townend said the increases in most cases will be more than called for in the guideline.

Mr. Townend, also assistant general manager of the Toronto Dominion Bank's mortgage department, said housing needs in 1976 will not likely suffer from a lack of mortgage money -- rather there is a real concern that the supply of housing, particularly housing in the moderate price ranges, may not be adequate to absorb the funds available.

The banks, he said, are not looking after "the fat cats" only. In fact, the opposite is true. The banks' average new mortgage commitment on single family dwellings last year was approximately $31,384.

"Lenders work on 'spreads' between the cost of funds and the lending rate," Mr. Townend said.

And it's not true that lenders like high mortgage rates because these "spreads" tend to get smaller and the problems get larger as interest rates rise.

Lending institutions in the private sector, including the banks, have been doing "a pretty fair job" and have "nothing to be ashamed of" in their support of residential and other mortgage financing of real estate, Mr. Townend said.

Since 1967, when the Bank Act revision permitted them to participate more fully in the mortgage market, the banks have quickly become one of the largest sources of residential mortgage funds. Today they provide one-third of the mortgage funds advanced by all private lending institutions.

Mr. Townend noted that the banks' outstanding mortgage loans increased more than five-fold since 1970 to $7.7 billion early this year.

"An added plus-factor results from the extensive branch bank system which makes it possible for the banks to process mortgages on uniform terms everywhere in Canada," he said.

"Thus more funds have become available in the smaller centres of Canada than ever before and on the same terms as for borrowers in the big cities where most other mortgage lenders tend to be located."

OTTAWA and Small Business

"Government must set a dramatic example of restraint by sharply reducing the rate of growth of the money supply and the growth of government spending." There should be a "a formal, continuous mechanism, like the auditor-general, to review the effectiveness of all government programs."

"Big government is ... more dangerous than big business or big labour, because government has the power to write the rules."

"Our economic policy should actively encourage smaller enterprises -- and local ventures such as community-based credit unions -- as the first means to balance the new power of international unions and multi-national corporations."

Important Property Owners

M.L.S. means Multiple Listing Service through a Real Estate Board. There are approximately 43 Real Estate Boards in Ontario. You may list your property through any one of your choice, however, it is only common sense to list with the Board in your own area. By doing so you will obtain the best results.

The reason is, of course, that most brokers in your area belong only to the local Real Estate Board. The brokers in your area are most likely to sell your property.

Gems of Truth

Judgment Contrasts

There are many people who claim that there is but one general resurrection of saint and sinner in the last day, and they lean heavily on Matthew 25:31-46 for their conclusion. This passage of Scripture was a prophetic utterance by the Lord Jesus Himself and is grossly misunderstood by many professing followers of His. The scene is one of living nations and has nothing to say about a resurrection.

However, the passage does deal with a coming judgment and is only one of seven judgment scenes recorded in Holy Writ. A brief summary of the seven different judgments spoken of in God's Word is perhaps startling to some people, but true nevertheless.

Most people have very little problem in acknowledging the first one, namely the "judgment of sin, laid upon the Person of Christ on the Cross." It is the clear teaching of Scripture, that when Jesus died upon the Cross the sins of the whole world were laid on Him. In other words, he was judged for them on the sinner's behalf. Thus taking a sinner's place, He became the means of being the go-between them and a Holy and Righteous God. John 1:29, 1 John 2:1-2.

The sinner who believes on the Lord Jesus Christ as his Saviour is "forever" past judgment for sin. John 5:24, Romans 8:1, 11 Cor. 5:21, for Christ died in his room and stead, bearing the judgment and penalty for his sin. 1 Cor. 15:3. God is too righteous to demand and exact the penalty for sin twice, and since Christ died for sins, the believing sinner is "free" from the judgment for sin, Romans 4:25, 1 Peter 2:24, 3:18. That judgment for sin is past Eternally.

However, the believer constantly needs to judge himself for allowing evil ways and habits in his walk of life, and if he fails to do so, the Lord may be using His child-training chastisement methods upon him. Total submission to the teachings of the Word of God for His children, needs to be voluntarily heeded, so that in all things he will conform his ways, habits and conduct to the standard of Holy living. The Holy Spirit enlightens and convicts the born-again believer, and if heeded will produce Godly living in all areas of life. Eph. 5:26-27, 1 Peter 1:22, John 17:17. Thus the child of God is sanctified through the Truth and is not in need of further strict disciplinary action from the Father. This is a self-judgment of the believer for his ways and habits of the Christian life, or the reason he allowed them 1 Cor. 11:31.

The final outcome of self-judgment will be revealed in a future judgment which will be meted out to each child of God at the "judgment seat of Christ" known as the judgment of the saints for service and conduct. 11 Cor. 5:10, Romans 14:12-14. This judgment will take place when the Church is removed from their scene of labour by the "Home" gathering at the return of the Lord Jesus for His saints. John 14:3, 1 Cor. 15:51-55, 1 Thes. 4:14-17. The purpose of this judgment is not to learn whether one has been saved or not, that question was settled when the Lord Jesus was received as Saviour. That believing one is saved right then and there. Acts 16:31, 1 Thes. 2:9-10.

Many professing Christians are very lax in living the life a new-born babe into the family of God should be living, and may be quite surprised when that life is reviewed at the "Judgment Seat of Christ." The Lord who saves people, expects His people to live a separated, consistent, Godly and holy life, with faithful service to Him. How grim to have a wasted life, lived for self, made known to all the saints at this day of reward!

After this day of reckoning by the Lord of the Church among His own, we find Scripture sets forth another "judgment day" for those who were left behind on earth when the Church was removed from it. This day is none other than the one mentioned previously in Matthew 25:31-46. Here the nations are gathered for judging and placing in their respective future places. It will take place at the return to earth of the Lord Jehovah with His saints and His reign of righteousness begins. Special attention is given to those Gentile nations gathered before the Lord of Glory as to how they used His "brethren". What they did to them they did as unto Him and He will justly reward for dealing with Israel in the days when Jerusalem was trodden down by them. This period of time covers the "days of grace" throughout the Church age. Luke 21:24. Actually the time of Gentile world domination began at the time Israel went into captivity at the hands of Nebuchadnezzar, 2 Chronicles 36:1-21. Ever since that time Jerusalem has been under Gentile overlordship. Only recent years has partly removed that shadow.

At this same time when Gentile nations are reviewed Israel also comes into full limelight as that nation is now again to enter into full blessing. Of this time the prophet Jeremiah speaks very clearly. Jer. 30:1-4, Isaiah 60:12-14. The added words of Ezekiel as to the sifting of the nation Israel as they enter the fulfillment of their millennial promises by Jehovah their Covenant keeping God, Ezekiel 20:33-38, are revealing indeed.

A sixth future judgment is mentioned in Jude 1:6, 11 Peter 2:4, 1 Cor. 6:3. Here the fallen angels are judged with their leader Satan. According to Rev. 20:10 it will follow the days of Christ's reign on earth and just previous to the appearing of a new heaven and earth. Rev. 21, 11 Peter 3:7-11.

The final day of reckoning will be when "all the rest of the dead" who have not been raised at the "first resurrection" and judged during the preceding judgments, will be raised to life and judged at the "great white throne". Whosoever is not found written in the "Book of Life, will be cast into the lake of fire, which is the "second death". Rev. 20:11-15. Many decry the fact that a loving God would let such a judgment scene come to pass. But these are not the words of sinfull man, a Righteous Father has been loving enough to warn and plead in His Word to take the way of escape. That escape route is by way of the Cross and all Christ rejecting souls will not be "sent" into outer darkness, they will "go" there of their own accord. There is no other place for them to go. Matthew 25:46.

Scientology - mental health

Background

Mr. Stephen Lewis and Dr. Stuart Smith have chosen to raise the issue of Scientology's involvement in mental health.

They base their interest upon the case of a Miss Kathy Tulumello, held some two years ago at Hamilton Psychiatric Hospital; her release - under the law - was due to pressures exerted by the Citizens Commission on Human Rights supported by a personal examination of Kathy by eminent professor of psychiatry, Thomas S. Szasz.

Kathy was done over by psychiatry, shocked, drugged and held in deplorable conditions. No rehabilitation measures were taken to fit her for society by the psychiatrists involved - nor are any in hand today.

Statement

The Church views the statements of both Mr. Lewis and Dr. Smith as an attempt to shut down the Church's criticism of psychiatry. For our part, we feel it is an issue that could effect every man, woman and child in Canada - not just Kathy Tulumello.

The involvement of the Church of Scientology in cleaning up the field of mental health is well known, and in view of the fact that Dr. Smith is a psychiatrist, we view his comments with the greatest suspicion, seeing in them a gesture to muzzle the Church's viewpoint on psychiatry, an attempt that will be resisted strenuously until such time as an inclusive Bill of Rights for mental patients is introduced into, and passed by, Parliament.

In February this year in South Africa, the Church of Scientology published an edition of their newspaper "Peace and Freedom", exposing the degrading conditions in which black South Africans are kept in psychiatric institutions in that country.

Within 48 hours, the South African Parliament had amended the law to stop "Peace and Freedom" and all other media from printing anything derogatory on psychiatry, including pictures of patients and the conditions.

Every "Freedom" accusation written was fully documented - every picture told its own story.

In Ontario, where psychiatry reeks like a Roman arena on a hot day, we find Mr. Lewis and Dr. Smith raising the Scientology involvement in mental health in a similar way to that in which it was raised in South Africa.

In other words, Mr. Lewis and Dr. Smith are trying to protect current abuses in the Ontario psychiatric field by an attempt to muzzle and stifle the most reform minded people on mental health - the Scientologists.

This is shades of Fascism from South Africa - where, as in Ontario, real abuses are feverishly being covered up by coats of hypocritical whitewash.

The Church welcomes this suggested inquiry on its involvement; we are exposing real abuses - so let's have it - and see who has the crimes. Let's see the patients, with proper legal representation, tell their stories. The woman who had 650 shock treatments and two psychosurgical operations: The man who recently shot his friend after having complained of side effects from psychiatric drugs: The healthy high school baseball player who was confined to Penetanguishene Maximum Security Hospital with no trial, and today, 4 years later, is 110 pounds and minus over 20 teeth: the young girl threatened with shock treatment if she didn't take her drugs: The 16 year old boy who leaped from the 5th floor when told he would be given more shock and drugs - and died.

And many more besides.

And let's hear from the psychiatrist in charge at Hamilton as to why it is alright to have patients sleep on steel bed springs - or be released with no rehabilitation measures, like Kathy, or show the patient's confidential files to the press - or deny they had used shock when they did: or why psychiatrists are charging double for treating patients.

The facts are that the field of psychiatry, of which Dr. Smith is a member, is engaged in a frantic cover-up of its activities resulting from national - and international - publicity engendered by the Church of Scientology, exposing atrocities perpetrated upon its patients.

The path of the reformer in mental health is similar to sailing through a sewer in a glass bottomed boat, especially here in Ontario. The Scientologists are the reformers and psychiatry is an absolute therapeutic state with its political lackeys represented by the "Big Nurse" in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest".

The Scientology viewpoint on psychiatry is not one peculiar to Scientologists: after all, some psychiatrists are Church of Scientology members - as are doctors, dentists and psychologists. But outside of Scientology too, authoritative opinion for Scientology's viewpoint on mental health reform is to be found.

The Church wants this issue out in the public forum for discussion. We say to Mr. Lewis and Dr. Smith and any other like minded psychiatrist, including George Rohn, executive director of the Canadian Mental Health Association, "let's debate the issue - anytime, anywhere in Canada. We are always happy to do Scientology: would you be happy to have a dose of your own treatment in the Cuckoo's Nest?"

In memory of a dear sister
Ceclia Young (nee Winn), who passed away May 14th,

In that city of light on the

Where the sun never sets or

In Memoriam

LITTLE - In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, Patricia Lynn, who passed away May 14, 1966.

Sadly missed along life's way
Quietly remembered every day
No longer in our lives to share
But in our hearts always remembered.

Sadly remembered by father, mother, sisters and brothers.

McNEIL - In loving memory of a dear husband and father Roy McNeil, who passed away May 11th, 1971.

May you always walk in sunshine
And God's love around you glow
For the happiness you gave us
No one will ever know.

As we loved you, so we miss you,
In our memory you are near
Loved, remembered, longed for always,
To us you were someone special,
Some one so good and true
You will never be forgotten
For we thought the world of you.

Always remembered by wife Lydia and son Truman and Mamie.

SHAW - In loving memory of a mother and grandmother, Muriel, who passed away May 10th, 1975.

Sadly missed along life's way
Quietly remembered every day
No longer in our life to share,
But in our hearts, she's always there.

Lovingly remembered by daughter Shirley and Family.

SHAW - In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Muriel, who passed away May 10th, 1975.

This month comes with sad regret,
She fell asleep without saying goodbye
But memories of her will never die.
I miss her more than anyone knows.
The tears I shed will wipe away
But the ache in my heart will always stay.
She left so suddenly her thoughts unknown,
But she left me memories I am proud to own.

Sadly missed by husband Charles and children, and 7 grandchildren.
